The 2nd Reading of the Proposed Ordinance 2012-07 Hazardous Substances Control is scheduled to be voted on at the Tribal Council meeting on NOVEMBER 10, 2012, in the Ojibwa Casino Resort Conference Room following the Tribal Council meeting.

The Tribal Council will receive verbal and written comments from Tribal Members at the public hearing in accordance with the Legislative Process public hearing procedure adopted by the Tribal Council.

Copies of the Hazardous Substances Control Proposed Ordinance 2012-07 are available at the Tribal Council Meetings, the Health Department, the Medical Center, Pines Convenience Center, Ojibwa Senior Citizens Center, Tribal Court, Community Relations, Ojibwa Housing Authority, and Ojibwa Community College. Copies are also distributed to all Departments within the Tribe.
TRIBAL COUNCIL NOTICE TO MEMBERS

On January 1, 2013:

1. The Licensing Department will begin issuing Keweenaw Bay Indian Community motor vehicle titles.

2. This will also be the last day to submit a request to the Licensing Department for a refund of KBIC taxes paid on the purchase of a vehicle.

These changes are the result of a Motion made by Council Member Jean Jokinen and supported by Council Member Eddy Edwards on September 25, 2012, for the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community “to begin titling our own vehicles and for those who have title to vehicles [to] request from the KBIC Licensing Department that they file their own claim for reimbursement through the state with no tax reimbursement from the tribe...”. This change was supposed to take effect on November 1, 2012. However, at the October 25, 2012, Council meeting, it was decided to extend that start date until January 1, 2013. However, does this affect you, a member of the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community? Well, as of January 1, 2013, you may apply for and receive a motor vehicle title through the Licensing Department at the Tribal Center.

In regards to the purchase of a motor vehicle, as of January 1, 2013, KBIC will no longer be reimbursing Tribal members for the sales or use tax paid on the purchase of that vehicle. In order to be reimbursed for a vehicle purchase, you will have to complete the State of Michigan’s refund forms and submit those forms to the State yourself. The State will then decide whether it will issue a refund. The State forms will be available at the Licensing Department and are also available online at: http://www.michigan.gov/documents/taxes/4765_329211_7.pdf.

The Tribal Council has concerns about the State refund process and is exploring alternatives on how best to challenge that process. In the meantime, your only option is to use the State refund process.

Activities reported by the Secretary, Susan LaFernier, for the month of October 2012.

ANIN! We honor the greatness in you. Remember: “Indian Country Counts” and “Our People, Our Nations, Our Future.” We continue to recognize the richness of Native culture through accomplishments, and sacrifices to the political, cultural, economic life of Michigan and the United States.

NCAI VOTE 2012—every vote and voice count. NCAI (National Congress of American Indians) President Jefferson Keel stated after the November 6th election that “NCAI welcomes a second term for President Barack Obama, but calls for Native American policy advancements in his first term set the groundwork for historic opportuni ties to move Indian Country forward during his second term. We look forward to engaging with the President to achieve even greater things in the next four years.” (See related November 7, 2012, release, page four). We need to continue to get Tribal members and supporters out to vote because your vote is a decision and makes a difference. Here are three challenges that you can do to make a big difference:

1. Think of three people you care about. Make sure they are registered (KBIC’s deadline to register is Thursday, November 15) and challenge them to reach out to three more people they care about. 2. Vote this year and encourage other voters to vote. 3. Spread the word to vote on Election Day! Thanks to everyone who voted at the KBIC Primary Election (63%) through the American Indian Youth Vote. Our goal for Keweenaw Bay is to have 100% of our registered/eligible members vote! Remember now to vote in the KBIC Presidential Election on Saturday, De cember 15, 2012.

The employee W.H.I.P.P. (Wellness, Health, Intervention, Prevention Program) Task Force and volunteers continue to have monthly meetings. It is never too late to encourage and begin positive lifestyle changes that will help us live longer, healthier, happier lives. Mino-Bimaadizin—“Live Well.” Remember everyone should participate in at least 30 minutes of physical activity five times a week to stay fit. The employee “Maintain, Don’t Gain” Challenge (over the holidays) began on November 9, through January 14, 2013.

The Drug Tip Line number is 353-DRUG or 353-3784. The yellow banners are around the reservation with this drug tip line number displayed. The Drug Task Force holds monthly meetings, and their Mission Statement is: “To promote education through public awareness with the specific objective to eliminate the use of illegal drugs for the benefitment of the health, safety, and quality of life for the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community and our neighboring Communities.” Be watching for information regarding “The Medicine Abuse Project,” which is a campaign to prevent half a million teenagers from abusing prescription medicine over five years.

We wish everyone a blessed, happy Thanksgiving!

Veteran’s Day – November 11, 2012. A celebration to honor America’s veterans for their patriotism, love of country, and willingness to serve and sacrifice for the common good. It should also be noted that the Vietnam Veteran’s Memorial Fund was established in 1979 and is dedicated to preserving the legacy of The Wall (which includes 52,282 service members names inscribed) in Washington, D.C., keeping Veteran’s stories alive, and educating America on the impact the war had on service members and their families. There is also a national-wide “thank you” tribute to Vietnam Veterans and their families.

Draft available for review of the KBIC Wolf Management Plan

A draft of the KBIC Wolf Management Plan was approved by the Tribal Council on October 17, 2012. A final version is expected to be complete in early December. The mission stated in the KBIC Wolf Management Plan is to maintain a healthy, self-sustaining population of wolves on and near Reservation boundaries thus preserving the cultural and ecological benefits for the next seven generations and beyond. The draft plan can be reviewed at: www.ojibwa.com/content/natural-resources.

Wolf tracking and remote camera surveys have been ongoing at study sites for an ANA funded survey project and additional routes and sites specifically set up to monitor wolves in KBIC are also monitored for wolf activity through a BIA Endangered Species grant. Wolves were detected at 4 of 28 (14%) wetland study sites using Cuddeback remote cameras set at KBIC. A sign was detected at 13 of the 28 (43%) wetland study sites during that same time period. Higher quality Reconyx cameras detected wolves at 15 out of 50 (30%) of upland and riparian study locations in 2010 and 2011, wolf track and sign was detected at 17 of 50 (34%) sites. Please contact Wildlife Biologist Pam Nankenvis via email with comments regarding the wolf management plan (pnankenvis@kbic-nen.gov or phone (524-557-119).

ty for Bipartisan Leadership on Native American Policy

Washington, DC – The National Congress of American Indians (NCAI) is hailing the results of the 2012 election, including the re-election of President Barack Obama, as a historic moment for advancing the trust relationship between tribal nations and the federal government. NCAI, the nation’s leading American Indian and Alaska Native advocacy organization, called for leaders from Indian Country and in the United States government to seize this moment and advance the nation-to-nation relationship between tribes and the United States.

“NCAI welcomes a second term for President Obama and his administration; Native American policy advancements in his first term set the groundwork for historic opportunities to move Indian Country forward during his second term. We look forward to engaging with the President to achieve even greater things in the next four years,” said Jefferson Keel, President of NCAI. Keel also serves as the Lt. Governor of the Chickasaw Nation in Oklahoma.

“The opportunity for a historic bipartisan Native policy agenda is very real. Along with our federal partners in Congress and the Obama Administration, tribal nations are prepared to move forward immediately on legislation that works to free tribal economies, restore tribal lands, protect the Indian budget, improve homeland security and disaster response, protect our Native women, boost tribal economic development, improve health care services, and strengthen educational opportunities for Native people.” concluded Keel.

The following is a list of activities that occurred in the office of the President for the month of October 2012:

- We continued to work toward our water monitoring program of the Eagle Mine. We are working closely with another federal agency and are close to figuring out the cost of the program, so we can work on the construction and the cost of the monitoring program. The Community and its partners have long recognized the need for independent monitoring and have communicated with all stakeholders who are interested in true independent and objective monitoring that will address all of our needs in full measure.
- The office has worked on the Christmas check guidelines, and so far no changes have been made to the docket except for voluntary withholding.
- We discuss the Tribal Police Department and its role when relating to off-reservation stops.
- In an effort to continue to recognize our sovereignty we are preparing to begin titling to the people. We need to do it by November 1. A couple of issues have come up regarding the issuing of titles. We discussed the issues with Council and decided to wait until January of next year to begin titling tribal members’ motor vehicles.
- Vice President Mayo attended the MAST meeting in Oneida, Wisconsin. They discussed their policies and elected a health board for the Midwest as well as being updated on several important issues. MAST chose to appoint Carole LaPointe to the newly formed health center committee which represents our area on important health issues relating to our tribal members. This is long overdue, and I expect to work closely with them.
- Our Huuki ad ran on our radio station which was approved for on-air announcements. One of our goals was to raise the awareness of our listeners to the position of our slate that Huuki, who ran for State House 110th District, choose to take on our gas station in Marquette. Council felt radio listeners should be aware of the Huuki ad. A Huuki ad also ran on M38 for motorists heading east. We contacted Danny Robillard, and he is working with us on this matter. We are working on the design of the sign and hopefully move toward concurrence.
- Last month we had an opportunity to be under the bright light. Chuck Miller taped us, and one of the goals in taping was for the Community to speak of the comprehensive prehensive strategic plan. Each Council member read a value section within the plan which has 12 value sections. The program will be tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. at the Community Center. The Feast of the Harvest is to be held at the Niwiin Akeeka Center.
- A number of Council Members met with Winona LaDuke, an activist, who talked with us regarding Eagle Rock and strategies relating to the mining of Eagle Rock. She provided us with a confident memo citing her concerns relating to the protection of Mother Earth. She also included us with the strategies involved.
- Last month I met with Paul Stark, Baraga Telephone Company. We discussed his upcoming annual report to E.T.C. regarding his company and how it serves the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community. He said he was initiating the meeting to meet reporting requirements and to take the opportunity to discuss the telecommunication needs of the Community. It was a good meeting, and I look forward to working with him to meet the telecommunication needs of the Community.

This concludes my report.

Keep Food Safe for a Happy Holiday Season

By: Dale Schmeisser, Diabetes Program Dietitian

The holidays are here and we're all do- ing more cooking—for those special family dinners, potlucks at work and parties with friends. It often means preparing things ahead of time for later use and cooking larger amounts of food than usual. That requires special attention to make sure that we kept food stored safely and properly and having a clean food preparation and cooking environment. Start with clean hands and clean ingredients, and keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold. If you've ever experienced food-borne illness (what we used to call "food poisoning"), you know how important it is to protect yourself and everyone else from the nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, and fever that can result from food-borne-bad.

The first week of December is "Handwashing Awareness Week" and it's a good reminder that the number one thing we can do to prevent food borne illness is to wash your hands. Wash before you start working with food, and then any time you touch your hair, mouth or nose, use the bathroom, or smoke. It’s especially important to wash your hands before and after handling raw meats, poultry, fish or eggs, and when you’re working with foods that won’t be cooked again before eating (salads, fruits, etc.).

We usually think of undercooked meat, poultry, eggs, and fish as the riskiest foods, but contamination can occur in raw fruits and vegetables if they’re not handled properly or cooked properly. Before cutting them, even the rind of fruit that won’t be eaten. Raw berries, spinach, peppers, and lettuce have all been implicated in recent outbreaks of foodborne illness. One of the most serious recent outbreaks was due to contamination of cantaloupe. Washing the rind before the fruit is cut can decrease the risk that bacteria on the outside will make its way to the edible part.

Heating foods to proper temperature is equally important. Poultry needs to be cooked to 165 degrees F to assure that bacteria are killed. This includes the stuffing inside of the bird, too. Some celebrity chefs prefer to cook the stuffing separately, because they find that in order to get the stuffing done, the bird gets done. Some have also found that it makes for a lot less commotion before serving a big meal. Other foods that need to be heated to 165 degrees are egg dishes, meatloaf, casseroles, and reheated leftovers. Use kitchen "instant temp" thermometers to check food temperatures. They are inexpensive and available in the kitchenware departments of most hardware and big-box stores.

Keeping cold foods cold is also important. When done properly, cold food from the oven that will be used later, try to cool it as quickly as possible. For example, cut large roasts into smaller portions to increase the surface area, and pour soups into shallow pans to cool down faster. While it’s still warm (but not steaming hot), put it in the refrigerator for the rest of the cooling, and keep it at refrigerator temperature below 40 degrees. Take care to get the temperature down soon as dinner is finished; foods left out more than two hours at room temperature are at risk of contamination and food poisoning should be discarded.

All of us in the KBCI Diabetes Program wish you a very happy, safe and healthy holiday season!

Lori Ann Sherman, a KBIC member, was recently hired as KBIC’s Natural Resource Director. Lori has a Bachelor’s degree in Business Management and a Master’s degree in Technical writing. Lori has one son, Jacob, who is doing an internship in North Dakota and is a sophomore at Michigan Tech studying Engineering. Lori is a member of the KBIC-ICWA committee and is on the Board of Directors for the National Indian Women’s Health Resource Center. Some of her interests include training horses, dogs, gardening, and spending time with her family. Lori has also trained K-9 Units for Search and Rescue and was a member of the D.O.G.S N Search and Rescue Unit. Lori said that she is looking forward to working for her tribe and continuing on with the awesome work being done out at the Natural Resource Department.

Cynthia Gourneau was recently hired as the Donald LaPointe Medical Facility’s Chief Pharmacist. Cynthia grew up in Omaha, NE and attended Creighton University for undergraduate and Pharmacy school. She was granted an IHS scholarship and did her scholarship payback on her reservation in Belcourt, ND — Turtle Mountain Band of Chippewa Indians. “This was my first staff pharmacist position, and I worked there for nearly five years. I met my husband at the pharmacy window three years ago while he was on leave from the military. I soon followed him to his station near Savannah, GA. We married and have a two year old son Leander. We relocated to Minneapolis, and I worked for the Fond du Lac Tribe at their urban satellite pharmacy as a clinical pharmacist for over a year. However, city life was too fast for us, and we decided to relocate to a rural area. I saw an advertisement for the KBIC pharmacy online and was thrilled when I was hired as the new Chief of Pharmacy,” Cynthia said. “I have experience instituting the Electronic Health Record while I was in Belcourt, and I am very excited to be a part of this new process at KBIC. I hope to increase patient safety, decrease medication errors, decrease patient wait times, and increase patient counseling. I want every patient to understand why they are taking the medications he or she has been prescribed and to be aware of major side effects. I am hoping patients will be willing to come to me for any type of assistance they may need regarding their medications. I am here for the patient population.” On a personal note, “We are still in the process of settling in L’Anse. In my spare time, I enjoy spending time with my family outdoors. We like to go swimming, and I enjoy playing at waterparks with my son. My husband is an avid fisherman and loves to ice fish and hunt. We are happy to live in such a beautiful, rural area. We are confident this will be a wonderful place to raise our son.”

Jason Claudier has been hired as the KBIC Elementary Tutor in the Baraga School. Jason graduated with an Associate’s Degree in Business from Gogebic Community College in spring of 2012. Jason resides in Baraga with his wife, Diana, and two daughters, Jadyn age four, and Madison age one. Jason added, “I enjoy hunting, going to camp, and more than anything spending time with my family.”

Austin Ayres, of Zeba, shot this nine point buck on September 29, 2012, on the L’Anse Indian Reservation. Congratulations, Austin!

Rio Tinto Mining Activities: At the Eagle Project site, a long decline tunnel to the nickel-copper sulfide deposit beneath the Salmon Trout River was completed in September of 2012. The company has since focused on construction work at the Humboldt Mill, which is expected to take two years.

In late October of 2012, during the digging and construction of an underground containment structure to hold the tailings pond with the surrounding groundwater from flowing out of the pit lake at Humboldt, a hydrologic channel was discovered in which an uncontrollable water and clay slurry ran into an adjacent wetland. Action was taken, but the company admits it is possible that additional slurry, which will wetland may occur during construction. KBIC mining staff are concerned that the containment wall is being built through unsuitable permeable gravel and sand soils – and that uncontrolled water and clay slurry ran into an adjacent wetland.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Region 5 is expected to decide soon whether or not to maintain a federal objection on proposed Marquette County Road 595 (a 21-mile haul road from Eagle to Humboldt Mill). There is political pressure by many elected officials to allow the development. EPA objected due to significant wetland impacts associated with the project and potential viable alternative routes – which were not considered primarily because Rio Tinto only committed to fund the western-most 595 direct route to Humboldt. The ability of EPA to object stems from retained federal oversight authority under the nation’s Clean Water Act, particularly Section 404 regarding wetlands, when the program was delegated to Michigan in 1984.

Monitoring: There are various monitoring programs underway on the Yellow Dog Plains. The KBIC works with Yellow Dog Watershed Preserve on quarterly monitoring of area springs and streams, and the Great Lakes Indian Fish & Wildlife Commission participated in a Year of Intensive Monitoring–Mining program with the USGS National Survey in 2012 to monitoring Lake Superior watersheds most at risk from mining, including the Salmon Trout River watershed. Recently, Rio Tinto has agreed to fund $300,000 annually in 3 year renewal periods) to the Superior Watershed Partnership and Marquette County Community Foundation to conduct additional monitoring.

Orvana Copperwood Project near Ironwood, MI: On November 14, the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality issued a National Pollution Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permit for proposed Copperwood mine water discharges into Nembwedjib Creek of Lake Superior. Also in November, the Gogebic Range Water Authority applied for a Lake Superior Water Intake System for the project, which is seen as an attempt for the company to avoid federal review under the Rivers and Harbors Act and Clean Water Act over the mine project. A state mineral permit for Copperwood was issued on April 30, 2012, and is not active until all other required permits are received. A wetland and streams 10 permit is currently under review, after receiving a similar EPA objection as 595. The mine tailings alone would impact on over 13,000 feet of streams and about 60 acres of wetlands adjacent to the Porcupine Mountain Wilderness State Park and Lake Superior.

Keweenaw: Highland Resources is conducting exploratory drilling for copper deposits in the Keweenaw Peninsula. Simultaneously, Michigan has proposed to revise upward copper standards in the Keweenaw, which is undergoing EPA review.

Ottawa National Forest: Trans Superior Resources (Bitterroot of Canada) has proposed to conduct exploratory drilling for gold, platinum, nickel and cobalt near Bergland, MI. Additional exploratory drilling by Trans Superior was reported by two citizens southeast of Kenton on November 4. Because the site near Kenton doesn’t occur on federal lands, the Forest Service claims it lacks regulatory jurisdiction.

Outreach & Education: Check out an educational mining database and audio presentations from Lake Superior Binaional Forum Public Meetings on mining in the basin online at: http://www.superiorforum.org. In the New Year, keep an eye out for Community Potlucks and a new KBNRD Tribal Mining Program webpage – coming soon!

To: Chris Swartz, Keweenaw Bay Tribal Council President
From: Michael Cardinal, Constitutional Committee Chairman
Subject: Constitutional Committee Report

The constitutional committee will be working on changes we felt were needed to the proposed amendment to removal of the Secretary of the Interior from our amendment process. We have also looked over the Michigan ordinance and the changes that will also have to be made to that document. We have been working on these changes for over two decades and it. We first introduced this amendment around July of 2011, and held a constitutional convention to get input into the direction our Tribe wanted to proceed on changes. The amendment was sent to the Tribal Council and was passed along to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Michigan Agency. They, in turn, passed it along to the Minneapolis Area Office in December of 2011. We did not get any answer to our request, until August 27, 2012.

Since that time the committee has been working on looking at the technical aspects of the BIA report. The amendment will be available for Tribal Council action at the beginning of the New Year.

At our October 2012 Constitutional Committee meeting, we, along with the Tribal Council President Swartz, decided to push back the request for the amendment to go to the Tribal Council until after the Tribal General Election. This was done because of the problems with the BIA getting their registration done while there was a Tribal election taking place. The changes we requested from the Secretary of the Interior were controversial, and we needed a legal opinion from the government, that if we changed our Constitution this would have no effect on our ability to still be considered an IRA tribe and able to place land into trust. The technical letter we received from the BIA has provided us with the answer to that question, and that is “Yes” we would still be an IRA tribe. There were other cautions expressed in that letter that we are addressing and will be sent to the Tribal Council at a later date.

Project Aims to Grow a Sustainable Industry

HOUGHTON, Michigan—There is a new online resource for Western Upper Peninsula residents curious about cost-saving advantages of wood pellet heating. Rural homeowners are encouraged to visit www.upbiofuel.com/calculator/. By entering current heating costs, the calculator will determine approximate annual savings and return on investment, based on professional installation of a quality wood pellet stove.

A wood pellet is a piece of ground wood, dehydrated and compressed to twice the energy density of green wood. “One thing we do really well locally is grow and harvest trees. Utilizing wood pellets to heat homes in rural areas of the Western U.P. is a sustainable and viable energy solution,” says Kim Stoker, Executive Director of the Western Upper Peninsula Planning and Development Region (WUPPDR).

The cost of oil, natural gas, and propane is historically high—and rising. Locally-sourced pellet fuel reduces dependence on these non-renewable fossil fuels. Most adults, including elderly, are capable of operating a wood pellet stove—no log splitting required. Additionally, wood pellet fuel has the potential to create a local industry, circulating fuels dollars in the local economy.

The U.P. BioFuel project is made possible through funding sought and received by WUPPDR. The goal of this collaborative effort is to realize the potential for growing biomass, to be harvested and used as a valuable fuel source, on unused or underused agricultural land in the Western Upper Peninsula.

For more information on U.P. BioFuel, visit www.upbiofuel.com or contact Kim Stoker, Executive Director, at (906) 482-7205, ext. 316 or kstoker@wuppdr.org.

Many Community members attended the Mini Powwow and Harvest Feast on November 11, 2012. The event was held at the Niiwin Akeaa Community Center in which the Community honored their veterans. Everyone had a great time, enjoyed songs by the Beartown Singers, and a fantastic feast was served. The event was sponsored by the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community and the KBIC Cultural Committee. A KBIC Comprehensive Strategic Plan was presented immediately following the activities.
