39th Annual Keweenaw Bay Maawanji’iding Held

It was a beautiful weekend for the KBIC’s 39th Annual Maawanji’iding. The event was held at the Ojibwa Powwow Campgrounds in Baraga, Michigan, on July 21-23, 2017. Participants and spectators enjoyed the songs and danced with 18 registered drums. There were an array of special events. Records indicate there were 614 dancers registered.

The onset of the weekend brought a Sunrise Ceremony on Thursday, July 20, 2017, Traditional Teachings with Darrel Kingbird, Ground Blessing and Feast, and Jaiya John, a sponsored speaker, brought to the Community by KBIC Youth Programs. Kingbird and John continued their teachings Friday morning and afternoon. Wiikwedong Ogichidaa (KBIC Honor Guard) presented the colors and led dancers into the arena for all the Grand Entries held Friday at 7 p.m., Saturday at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m., and Sunday at 1 p.m. Ray Cadotte honored KBIC as their Head Veteran Dancer; Rodney Loonsfoot, KBIC, as Head Male Dancer; and Tina Connor as Head Female Dancer. Darrell Kingbird served as Arena Director; Little Otter as Host Drum; and there were four invited drums: Hay Creek, Four Thunders, Summercloud, and Woodland Singers. Emcees John Teller, Jr. and Mike Sullivan, Sr. did an awesome job keeping everyone informed about the events.

Friday evening brought a new Miss Keweenaw Bay and Junior Miss Keweenaw Bay to our Community. Jaycie Forcia was crowned as the 2017 Miss Keweenaw Bay, and Starr Dunleavy was crowned as the 2017 Miss Junior Keweenaw Bay.

Saturday’s events began with fry bread competitions. Michelle Webster (Noreen’s Iroquoi Kitchen) took 1st place in the adult division, and Sam Chosa (Rez Robin’s) took 1st place in the youth division. This year the Powwow Committee honored Ralph Eckerberg and Agatha Cardinal as their Honored Elders, and an Honored Elders Song was held after Grand Entry on Saturday.
The 15th Annual KBIC Kids Fishing Derby Held

The Community looks forward every year to a grand event held the last weekend of June. The 15th Annual KBIC Kids Fishing Derby was held on Saturday, June 24, 2017, at the Sand Point Pond near the Lighthouse in Baraga, Michigan.

Derby Coordinator and KBNRD Fisheries and Wildlife Biologist, Gene Mensch, with the help of Keweenaw Bay Natural Resources Department (KBNRD) staff and many community volunteers, worked to make this event a success.

Gene Mensch said, “We had 414 kids (0-12) register this year. Even in the rain, this is huge turnout. I’d like to thank all the parents and kids who came to the event, bravely the elements, and worked with us to make sure everyone was having fun. Fifty-eight Fisher-Kids registered fish from the pond.

Our champion is seven-year-old Aysana Morin, who hauled in two fish that had the greatest combined length. She won the championship trophy, a $100 gift certificate compliments of the American Legion Post 444, and a trip to the prize tent on a date to be determined. We were forced to close down certain aspects of the event due to the driving and persistent rains and a bunch of shivering Fisher-Kids. Prizes had to be distributed over the course of the following days. Most of the prizes have been awarded, but we still have some work to do regarding this.”

The annual event honors an individual who was or is a commercial fisherman. This year’s event honored Richard L. Semasky, Sr.

Richard “Smack” Semasky, Sr. was born in L’Anse, Michigan, to the late Joan and Delia (Santeline) Semasky, on April 17, 1937. He had two sisters, the late Jean and Gracie, and three brothers, the late Harold, Elmer, and Raymond. Richard was a member of the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community, VFW, and the Ojibwa Seniors. He loved hunting, fishing, and enjoyed cooking and smoking fish. He was also a Green Bay Packers fan.

Richard grew up in L’Anse and later joined the U.S. Air Force in 1954. He was a long-time fisherman from Bay Mills, until he took a job as one of the first law enforcement officers for the Bay Mills Indian Community. He then moved back to L’Anse and took a job with the Great Lakes Indian Fish and Wildlife Conservation (GLIFWC) in the mid 1980’s. Richard retired from GLIFWC (with over 25 years of service) as the supervisor of law enforcement for all Tribes surrounding the Great Lakes for the entire Western Great Lakes Basin.

The following story was provided by Richard’s daughter, Irene. “There are a lot of stories I can recall, but I like this one. I believe that it impacted my Dad’s life just enough for him to change the direction of his life. He talked about when he and his good friend and fishing partner, Lehman Teeple, were out on the Lake pulling in their nets. Several boxes were loaded with fish to the point where their big steel boat was weighed down, almost to water level. They were ecstatic about the amount of fish they pulled in their nets. Back in the day, living on the Bay Mills Reservation, there were not many job prospects. Fishing was the way of life.”

Just as my Dad and Lehman were finishing up and getting ready to come in off the lake, a storm came up really fast. The darkness started to take over in a matter of minutes. The Lake, that had been as calm as ever, took on a new look. The ripples in the waves became bigger as the wind blew harder. They were starting to take on water. With boxes loaded with fish to the point where their big steel boat was weighed down, almost to water level. They were ecstatic about the amount of fish they pulled in their nets. Back in the day, living on the Bay Mills Reservation, there were not many job prospects. Fishing was the way of life for most of our members and their families.

Imagine yourself as “a sea star reaching out to the sea...with your legs further than hip width apart, reach your arms up into a V shape. Open your fingers, gently bring your head back then stretch and reach for the sky...HOLD.” Lisa Denomie, author of Sea Life Yoga and KBOCC’s Early Childhood Education graduate, invites her readers (all ages) on a journey to discover themselves through the personal wellbeing that comes from taking care of your own health.

Lisa took KBOCC on two yoga journeys. The first journey walks us into the Early Childhood Department’s Health, Safety, and Nutrition class for future teachers. As Lisa facilitated and guided students through her book, they learned about breathing, effective use of energy, and taking care of themselves. Teaching can be stressful and overwhelming! Lisa modeled how to breathe more deeply and to develop a sense of peace and calm in their bodies. She explained how breathing and physical movement can enable them to use their renewed energy to feel more relaxed, focused, and motivated. Lastly, as students and future teachers, we forget to take care of ourselves. Lisa stressed to the students how important it is to take care of ourselves and that yoga is a great way to move our bodies and feel healthy.

The second journey leads us to a family fun night with Migizin-sag’s (Little Eagles) children and parents (some of the parents were students from our first journey). It is important for children to know about their bodies. The sea creatures illustrated in the book, nudges the children’s imagination. Visualizing and moving as a sea creature builds an attitude of physical movement being enjoyable when they learn how to move more freely and with greater ease and awareness. Yoga tends to quiet the mind. This can assist with children building listening skills and teaches children to be the “boss” of their own bodies by modifying or changing poses.

The National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC) says it best, “without the fundamental skills, many children opt out of physical activities, thus becoming less fit, less skilled, less comfortable with physical effort and challenge.....such children are at greater risk for childhood obesity and other health risks of insufficient exercise (pg. 164). With the insight and support from the Restorative Teaching Initiative, this yoga experience is one of many strategies that contribute to sustained engagement resulting in improved learning opportunities and health benefits for Native families and their children. The beauty of yoga is that it is for all ages!

Lisa’s book was published in February by Nizilikweg Creations and can be purchase on Amazon https://www.amazon.com/dp/0998434809 or Createspace https://www.createspace.com/6843722.

Fun and a little healthy competition between kids and their fathers were in the air on Saturday, June 17, 2017, as the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community held their third annual Responsible Fatherhood Day.

“The purpose of today is to honor our fathers and our moms who are here to come together for a family event to promote family,” said Rodney Loonfoot, organizer and KBIC Tribal Council Member. "It is about putting the sacredness back into our families."

The day was filled with kickball, basketball, art, and food, and it was free to participants. “We wanted all families to come in, granted the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community is here, but we wanted to open it up to the community because we are all one big family community here,” said Loonfoot.

The event also offered other community services to inform the public on foster and family issues. “We need to let everyone know of the great need for foster care and foster parents is, not only at the tribal level, but at the state level,” said Director of Tribal Social Services. "This is just one event to get these groups and partners to the table."

"I work for the office of child support, so many moms and dads aren’t together,” added Laura Mayo, the outreach coordinator, "So mom doesn’t get enough time with the kids and neither does dad. Events like this get families together, while they spend the whole day together, and just enjoy each other."

Saturday’s event wasn’t the only day fatherhood is honored and celebrated with the KBIC, they also offer programs to push the sacredness of parenting. “It is to teach fathers the traditional ways of our culture that’s slowly is being lost,” said Bryan VanDyke. "It was a good program that was fun, we learned stuff to pass to our kids, so they can learn the traditions.”

Rodney said, "This is the biggest turnout we’ve had so far for this event, and we are excited to continue it on to next year’s Father’s Day along with starting up some additional fatherhood and motherhood programs."

The event was sponsored by the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community, KBIC Tribal Council, KBIC Health System, KBIC Healthy Start/Family Spirit Program, KBIC Youth Program, BALAC Grant, Tribal Social Services, KBIC Child Support Services, and the Native American Fatherhood and Families Association.

August is National Breastfeeding Awareness Month

Breastfeeding Information for You!

Here are some basics:
- After your baby is born, place your baby skin to skin, delay baths, weights, etc., until after your baby has had the first feed. It's important to have the baby latch and nurse at breast. They are much more efficient at removing milk than any pump.
- Babies need to nurse often. Usually every one to two hours, and the stimulation at breast helps you to make more milk. Remember it's a supply and demand system, so try not to interrupt that... After the first month, you can pump if you want. Pump some milk and start storing for when you're back to work or away from baby.
- Dads can be involved with baby by doing other things than feeding like hold the baby, changing diapers, or keeping Mom awake while breastfeeding.
- Remember it's supply and demand; if your baby is in a growth spurt they will nurse like crazy and not seem very satisfied, keep them close and nurse often, by the next day your milk supply will have increased, and baby will be more satisfied.
- You can tell your baby is getting enough milk by how many poops they have in a day. Yellow seedy stools at first and lots will seem like whenever you change a diaper there's poop. Poops mean they're getting enough.

Purchased Referred Care: Purpose of the Program

The Purchase Referred Care Program purchases health services that cannot be provided at KBIC Health System. It is neither an insurance nor an entitlement program.

Payment for services under this program is dependent upon the availability of federal funding and medical priority. Do not rely on Purchase Referred Care funds as your only medical/dental insurance coverage. The program provides emergency room care of emergency conditions, urgent medical conditions, surgical condition or acute injury, renal replacement therapy acute and chronic, emergency psychiatric care involving suicidal persons or those who are a serious threat to themselves or others, obstetrical deliveries, prenatal care and acute pre-natal care, routine and medically indicated eye examinations, eye glasses, diagnostic testing, and physical therapy.

Services are covered if they are considered within priority 1 guidelines from Indian Health Service. Priority 1 services would result in immediate death, loss of limb or senses, or serious impairment to the health of the individual. All PRC services require a written referral from a KBIC Health System physician. The referral does not ensure payment; please call the PRC office at 353-4537 with questions or for more information. Patient will sign acknowledgment at time of referral insurance.

What is Public Health?

Public health connects us all. It's the science of protecting and improving the health of families and communities through promotion of healthy lifestyles, research for disease and injury prevention, and detection and control of diseases.

Overall, public health is concerned with protecting the health of an entire population. These populations can be as small as a local neighborhood, or as big as an entire country or region of the world.

Public health professionals try to prevent problems from happening or recurring through implementing educational programs, recommending policies, administering services, and conducting research; in contrast to clinical professionals like doctors and nurses, who focus primarily on treating individuals after they become sick or injured. Public health also works to limit health disparities. A large part of public health is promoting healthcare equity, quality, and accessibility.

Who is the Typical Public Health Professional?

There is no "typical" public health professional. The public health workforce in the United States consists of about 50,000 individuals through diverse professional training and experience: they are nurses, physicians, or laboratory technicians by training, educators, nutritionists, or social workers by training, biostatisticians, epidemiologists, economists, lawyers, or community-based workers who might include concerned parents, or civic leaders who volunteer their time.

How do all of these people with a unified purpose but different skills work together successfully to carry out the mission of public health? They have a logic model to consult.

The 10 Essential Public Health Services describe public health activities that all communities should undertake. It serves as the framework foundation for any public health activity, describes public health, and used as a foundation for National Public Health performance standards; which provide a description of the essential service at an optimal level that public health systems can use to assess their performance, and provide structure for national accreditations.

Public health systems should:
1. Monitor health status to identify and solve health problems.
2. Diagnose and investigate health problems and health hazards in the community.
3. Inform, educate, and empower people about health issues.
4. Mobilize partnerships to identify and solve health problems.
5. Develop policies and plans that support individual and community health efforts.
6. Enforce laws and regulations that protect health and ensure safety.
7. Link people to needed personal health services and assure the provision of health care when otherwise unavailable.
8. Assure competent public and personal healthcare workforce.
9. Evaluate effectiveness, accessibility, and quality of personal and population-based health services.
10. Research for new insights and solutions to health problems.

Janet Marie Walker (October 22, 1943—June 23, 2017)

Janet Marie Walker, age 73 of L’Anse, MI, passed away on Friday, June 23, 2017, at Bayside Village in L’Anse. She was born October 22, 1943, in Detroit, MI, daughter to Roy and Mary (Morin) Walker. At the age of two, Janet suffered an accident that left her severely mentally and physically disabled.

Despite her handicap, Janet retained a positive outlook, an infectious sense of humor, and an iron will. Ice cream, puppies, stuffed animals (especially chipmunks), and visits from her brother always generated a huge smile.

In the past 20 years Janet lived at Aurora House in L’Anse, and the staff took care of Janet as though she was family. In a sense, I suppose she was. We greatly appreciate their kindness and love for Janet. Janet is survived by her brother Bill (Ruthanne); nephews: Chris and Benjamin (Jessica); and niece: Erin (Pete).

A private traditional burial ceremony for family was held. The Jacobson Funeral Home of L’Anse assisted the family.

In 2002, he started his own company, Haataja Truck’n. Work was his passion; it brought him great joy. Rudy also enjoyed snowmobiling with his girls, boating, and ice fishing.

Visible Farming Tour

A Saturday morning of fun! KBIC Health invited all to tour our local farmers markets and gardens. Tashina Emery, BALAC Coordinator, said, “We met farmers from all over the U.P., learned something new at each stop, which crops were in season, why they choose to farm the way they do, and eating healthy on a budget. We also got to know our local artisans, bakers, and food purveyors.
